1.3 - Curriculum Enrichment

1.3.1 - Institution integrates crosscutting issues relevant to Professional Ethics, Gender, Human Values, Environment and Sustainability into the Curriculum

SPPU offers various courses that integrate Professional Ethics, Gender, Human Values, Environment and Sustainability into the Curriculum. They mostly form the Generic Elective courses under Choice Based Credit System, in addition to the independent programmes that are specially designed to address these issues. Courses like CSR, Ethics, Corporate governance etc are taught in several degree programs.

Sensitivity about gender issues, environment pollution, safety management, environment and waste management is created through lecture and seminar series conducted by experts in the field in various departments, besides inclusion of these topics in regular classes.

The curriculum also integrates experiential learning through port visits, attachment with NGOs, summer project and Research Project. In application based courses, curriculum effectiveness is brought by introducing simulation and workshops

The University encourages Social projects & internship to sensitize students to the socio-economic problems prevailing in the community.

Also students participate in environment friendly activities like plantation of trees, rainwater harvesting through Student welfare and development board and Learn and earn schemes on the campus. The process is fully transparent and well documented. Thus the complete continuous process ensures the contemporariness of curriculum and also its effective implementation to achieve the programme objectives.

2.2 - Catering to Student Diversity
2.2.1 - The institution assesses the learning levels of the students and organises special Programmes for advanced learners and slow learners
The University has a formal mechanism of continuous assessment in the choice based credit system. The mechanism that classify the advanced learners from the slow learners is based on the performance of students in the internal and external examinations in the continuous assessment process. The syllabi designed for various courses have optional advanced courses that fast learners can opt for. Similarly, advanced learners are provided with professional/application oriented/higher skill developing courses to meet their learning needs. Students are also encouraged to join courses offered on SWAYAM portal for advanced learning in specialised subject areas. The slow learners on the other hand are provided with bridge courses/off the class discussion forums conducted by the teachers. English language proficiency courses are specially conducted for International and Indian students both to overcome language barriers and enhance the pace of their learning. Every student enrolled to the campus courses, is provided with a mentor who understands and takes care of personalized learning needs of slow and fast learners and fine tune the modes of content delivery for them.

2.3 - Teaching- Learning Process

2.3.1 - Student centric methods, such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem-solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences

The University teachers after their appointment to the campus departments have to undergo an orientation program of 28 days which principally teaches them the various pedagogies and assessment methodologies. The Student centric learning methods, such as experiential, participative and problem-solving learning are thus regularly used by the teacher of campus departments in their regular teaching process to enhancing learning experiences of students. Four quadrant learning, i.e. LeD (Learning Dialogue), LbD (Learn by Doing), LxT (Learning Extension Trajectories) LxI (Learner experiential Interaction) are used by teachers to conduct the teaching process. Thus the teaching process in campus departments include, questioning during content delivery, practical based learning, provided reference material after content delivery and discussion forums regulated by moderators to enhance learning experiences of slow and fast learners.

Every teacher is given the freedom to use the best pedagogy for their course. For instance, enhanced learning experiences for Science students through laboratories, for students of humanities is through field projects and for commerce and management its through internships. These activities are integrated in the syllabi and thus acquisition of knowledge is tested through practical performance or viva-voce exams.

2.3.2 - Teachers use ICT enabled tools including online resources for effective teaching and learning processes during the year

ICT enabled tools have been used by some teachers for a long time. However, the pandemic period, ensures that all teachers accepted technology as an integral part of teaching and learning process. Teaching for the academic year 2020-21 remained a combination of predominantly online and scantily offline mode. The online mode of teaching required use of technology platforms, such as Google-Meet, Zoom, Microsoft-Teams which were tried, tested and effectively implemented by all the faculty members in the regular teaching process. Another tool for effectively teaching the students was the YouTube. Teachers of campus departments developed their own private YouTube channels and hosted their Video lectures for restricted or open use for students. The University's e-content portal initiative was appreciated by all the faculty members of campus and affiliated college teachers and they contributed to develop content for this portal, continuing the learning process uninterrupted during the pandemic period. The University subscribed a Learning Management System, Moodle, and was quickly accepted by the teachers for teaching and conducting examinations. The use of proctored method provided by the Moodle LMS, helped in maintaining sanctity and spirit of the University examination. ICT tools have become an inseparable part of the teaching learning process.
