Rationale of the PG Diploma:

Security discourses are changed after Cold War from traditional to non-traditional. The contemporary security issues have changed the role of security forces, whose core objective was to protect and defend the nation from unwanted interferences but today security forces are involved in non-traditional security issues such as disaster management, terrorism, cyber security etc. In fact, security institution/forces are fighting with any problem which disturbs the country's economy, institutions, and day to day life or in short- the wealth of the nation, or that which threatened the national security.

In this globalized world where every information is available just on touch. The ease of getting the information is good for dissemination of information but sometimes too much of information creates confusion and chaos which can lead to dangerous law and order situation. Reporting sensitive issues with correct analysis, carrying gravity of importance will help people to understand the issues in an effective manner.

This course is designed to nurture professional journalists and young students who want to join defence analysis & journalism as a career. Rationale of this PG diploma is to spread awareness about national security issues and its gravity, and acquaint students / professionals with concept of Security Studies, Nation Security and Indian Strategic Thoughts.

Aims and Objectives :

- ⊙ Disseminating knowledge of defence and security affairs and understanding of national security in the field of journalism.
- ⊙ To provide appropriate forum to enhance their understanding related to the issues, ideas and challenges of modern practices of Warfare.
- ⊙ To provide opportunities to working journalists to enhance their knowledge and upgrade skills
- ⊙ To spread awareness about the impact of media on national security and nation-state.
